

Chances are one of your loved ones is alive today because of clinical research.

Clinical research helps change lives, every day. For more than 100 years, National Jewish Health has been committed to finding new treatments and cures for diseases.

Can we contact YOU about Clinical Research?

You or your child might be interested in one of our many research opportunities.

Depending on the research study, qualified participants may receive:

- No-cost medical evaluations and procedures
- Study medications provided at no cost
- Financial compensation
- Disease-related education

If you are interested in learning more about clinical research:

- We will ask you to fill out the Research Authorization form which gives us permission to contact you about research. It does not require you to participate in any study.
- The permission expires after 5 years or your child turns 18. You can choose to stop it at any time.
- We will try to find studies suitable for you by searching medical data about your treatment at National Jewish Health.
- We are obligated by law to keep your medical data confidential, and there are multiple safeguards in place for that.

National Jewish Health
1400 Jackson St.
Denver, CO

njhealth.org

To learn more about the clinical research studies going on at National Jewish Health, please go to njhealth.org/ClinicalTrials.

If you have questions about research or your rights as someone in this database, please call the National Jewish Health Institutional Review Board at 303.398.1477.